

Nanemachi Waterfall Trek 2026 from Mumbai & Pune | 400 feet Falls

1 night, 1 day

Overview

Nanemachi Waterfall Trek with Satsada Waterfall, from Mumbai and Pune

1 Night 1 Day | Easy Grade | Raigad District, Maharashtra | Best in Monsoon (June to September)

About the Nanemachi Waterfall Trek

The Nanemachi Waterfall is one of the most spectacular monsoon waterfalls in Maharashtra, tucked deep inside the dense forests of the Raigad district near Mahad. Plunging around 400 feet down a forested rock face into a deep blue pool, Nanemachi stays hidden from the regular tourist trail, which is exactly what makes it special. The pool shifts through shades of blue and green as the daylight changes, giving the spot an almost magical feel during the monsoon.

This is a waterfall discovery trek built for people who want raw, untouched nature without a punishing climb. The trail winds through thick green forest and gentle stream crossings, and on the same day you also visit the nearby Satsada Waterfall, making it a full two-waterfall monsoon experience from a single trip. It is an easy-grade trek that is perfect for first-timers, families, and anyone chasing the green-season Sahyadris.

Frequently Asked Questions

Nanemachi Waterfall Trek: Complete Guide and FAQ

Is Jain food available on this trek? Yes. Please mention your Jain food requirement in the comments at the time of booking, or call us in advance, and we will arrange it.

Are washrooms available during the trek? Trekking routes in Maharashtra do not have washrooms. There is a stop at a villager's house with basic Indian-style toilets. A washbasin may not be available.

Is parking available at the base village? There is no designated parking spot. Locals may ask for a small parking fee, and vehicles are parked at the owner's own risk.

Are solo and female trekkers welcome? Absolutely. Solo trekkers are welcome, and we maintain a 6:4 male-to-female ratio on each trek, with a female trek leader assigned when available.

Can the bus reach late after the trek? Yes, delays can happen due to poor road conditions, breakdowns, punctures, bad weather, or Mumbai traffic from ongoing metro and bridge construction. If the bus is delayed, Treks and Trails is not liable for refunds or taxi or cab costs.

What should I pack for this monsoon trek? Carry a waterproof backpack with rain cover, a poncho or rainproof jacket, quick-drying clothes, trekking shoes with good grip, extra socks, a torch with spare batteries, 2 to 3 litres of water, energy snacks, a personal first-aid kit, and ID proof. Double-bag your phone and valuables in plastic.

Are leeches a problem on this trek? Yes, leeches are common on forested monsoon trails in Maharashtra. Wear long socks, tuck your trousers in, and apply insect repellent on your legs. Carrying a small salt or lime solution helps detach any leeches quickly.

Where is Nanemachi Waterfall located? Nanemachi Waterfall is in Mahad Taluka, Raigad district, Maharashtra, India, hidden inside a dense forest. The nearest town is Mahad, about 25 km from the base village. It lies roughly 240 km from Mumbai and 175 km from Pune, making it a popular weekend monsoon trek for both cities.

How tall is Nanemachi Waterfall? Nanemachi Waterfall is approximately 400 feet tall. It cascades down a forested rock face into a deep blue pool that shifts colour through the day. This height makes it one of the tallest and most scenic hidden monsoon waterfalls in the Raigad district of Maharashtra.

Is the Nanemachi Waterfall trek easy or difficult? The Nanemachi Waterfall trek is an easy-grade trek of 3 to 4 km round trip, taking about one hour to reach the falls from the base village. During monsoon the forest trail turns slippery, so trekking shoes with good grip are recommended, making it easy to moderate in the rains.

What is the best time to visit Nanemachi Waterfall? The best time to visit Nanemachi Waterfall is the monsoon, from June to September, when the falls run at full flow and the forest is lush green. Outside the monsoon the waterfall has little to no water, so Nanemachi is strictly a monsoon-season trek and waterfall experience.

How do I reach Nanemachi Waterfall from Mumbai? From Mumbai, travel about 240 km to Mahad, then continue around 25 km to the base village by taxi or rickshaw. The journey takes six to seven hours. The easiest option is an organised overnight trek from Mumbai, which includes private AC bus transport, breakfast, lunch, and a trek leader.

How do I reach Nanemachi Waterfall from Pune? From Pune, travel about 175 km to Mahad via Bhor Ghat and Varandha Ghat, then around 25 km further to the base village. Joining a guided Pune departure is simplest, with transport, meals, and a trek leader bundled into one package for a hassle-free monsoon trek.

What is the entry fee for Nanemachi Waterfall? There is no formal entry ticket for Nanemachi Waterfall. Locals may charge a small parking fee at the base village, payable on the spot. On a Treks and Trails trek, all transport, meals, and guide costs are included in a single trek price of Rs. 1,649 from Mumbai or Rs. 1,499 from Pune.

Can you swim at Nanemachi Waterfall? Swimming is not allowed at Nanemachi Waterfall or in the pool below it, for safety reasons. The pool is deep and currents can be strong during monsoon. Trekkers should follow the trek leader's instructions and stay within sight of the guide at all times.

Does the Nanemachi trek include Satsada Waterfall? Yes. The Treks and Trails Nanemachi Waterfall trek also includes a visit to the nearby Satsada Waterfall on the same day, after returning from the main hike. This gives you two scenic Raigad waterfalls in a single overnight trip from Mumbai or Pune.
